

The Atlas Coal Mine

Visiting the Atlas Coal Mine near Drumheller, Alberta is a fascinating experience.

Every summer, the Atlas allows visitors to descend underground into the old mine. Unleash the explorer in you and dig into the past, as you put on a miner's hat and walk in the footsteps of a Canadian coal miner in the 1930s. As you follow the dark tunnels, you can try doing some of the miner's tasks yourself, such as raising and lowering the miner's baskets, or climbing inside coal cars!

The tour of the mine involves walking on rocky and steep ground, so make sure to wear comfortable shoes! Then, relax and enjoy the warm summer weather as you sit in a coal car and take an above-ground train tour.

A day at the Atlas is fun and educational for people of all ages!
